

Health PEI's Provincial Department of Medicine is seeking a full time General Neurologist to join the healthcare team for Prince Edward Island.

As a Neurologist on PEI, the physician will be joining two Neurology colleagues providing outpatient consultative and other neurology services for Islanders. The physician will be required to participate in daytime on-call services (weekdays only). On call duties involve accepting consultation requests across the province by phone and seeing inpatient consultations at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital (QEH). Call hours are typically 8-5, Monday-Friday. There is no neurology inpatient service.

Description of neurology services in PEI:

- Neurology clinic & Provincial Secondary Stroke Prevention Clinic, located at the Polyclinic building downtown Charlottetown in a joint area with the other two current neurologists
- Nursing and administrative support is provided for the stroke prevention clinic
- Two Thrombolysis hospitals (QEH in Charlottetown and Prince County Hospital in Summerside)
- Endovascular acute stroke patients are referred to Halifax
- The Organized Stroke Care Program of PEI has been awarded the Accreditation Canada Stroke Distinction Award in 2018 and 2022 for the province-wide continuum of stroke services offered in PEI
- EMG/NCS and EEG services are supported by two full-time cross-certified technologists and active recruitment ongoing for a third technologist
- Opportunities for medical leadership training and coaching support are provided through the Medical Society of PEI

Located at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, in Charlottetown or the Prince County Hospital, in Summerside, the applicant would be expected to provide outpatient general neurology consultation services for a wide variety of conditions, as well as consultation services in the Provincial Secondary Stroke Prevention Clinic. Expertise in managing neuromuscular conditions or movement disorders patients would be an asset. Qualification with EMG/NCS with CSCN certification would also be an asset.
